ON THE FARM.

A hen house without a south window is a mistake.

Don't let an apple go to waste. Every windfall will help to fit the pigs for the early market.

Have you culled out all the unprofitable

birds? If not, do it at once and give the others a chance.

It is important to pick vegetables at the right time. If picked while the sun is at its height, they are more or less wilted and do not keep so well. This does not apply to beans—they should never be handled when wet or they will rust. Nearly all vegetables are juicier and sweeter if picked before they are quite full-sized.

What science has done for telephone,

telegraph, for railroad, for steel manufacturing—has been too often again and again outside the agricultural bulletin, the story of what science has and is doing for the farm is almost unknown, though the gains brought about by applied science in a single group of states in a single year

would more than equal the capital of the great steel trust. You can figure this out in corn and potatoes alone and see that it is true.

In the shed or outkitchen of every farmhouse there ought to be a closet or box in which to keep dry, clean shoes for the farmer and his men or boys to slip on

when they come from the stable, or from spreading fertilizers, before they come to the sitting-room, or especially to the table, where unpleasant odors are not appetizing. When not at work the footwear, if not polished, should at least be clean and neat.

This is a busy time of the year, but if you can think it in, now is an opportune

season for fixing the channel of any small creeks or runs that may threaten to tear

up your farm. The water is lower now than at some seasons of the year. A few days' work with the team, wagon and scrapers may fix the banks and channel so that the water will not get out of its course and do damage to the land. Our farms are too valuable to be cut up in that way.

The man who sticks to one breed from year to year through all its ups and downs,

is sure in the long run to enjoy the just rewards for his constancy. The breeder who keeps changing from one breed to another, or who makes endless "crosses," hoping to find one "easy to breed" and extraordinarily profitable, is the one who is always complaining about his poor luck in the poultry business. A good poultryman can make a success with almost any breed in the field.—Agricultural Epitomist.

The Review of Reviews says that what the tillers of the soil earn in 17 days

would buy out the Standard Oil Company

—water, oil, good will and even John D.

Rockefeller. That is not a bad thing to purchase Belgium and leave a big balance in the bank. Two would buy Italy, three Austria, and five all Russia. Sounds like a fairy tale, doesn't it? Yet, if you will sit down and figure it out, you will find it

"the truth, the whole truth and nothing

but the truth."

GATHERED UP.

The reason we dislike the end seat hog

is that he won't let us pass.

Before you set your heart on anything

maturely consider whether it will add to your ultimate happiness.

Years in mortal miseries are vain.

If jumping at conclusions came under the head of physical exercise most women

would be athletes.

Few people would be satisfied if their dreams came true.

There is more lying done in the matter

of congratulations than on any other subject.

Lady—You look robust. Are you equal to the task of sawing wood? Tramp—

Equal isn't the word, mum. I'm superior to it. Good morning.

Parson—Boys, don't you know that you shouldn't play ball on Sunday?

Timony—That's all right, Parson. We aren't playing; we're practicing for tomorrow's game.

"They are quite ordinary people, aren't they?"

"Yes—keep their engagements, eat plain food, pay their bills and all that sort of thing."

AN ANTICLIMAX.

Sir Henry Irving was frequently a victim to the interjections of gallery gods.

When playing "Macbeth" one night he had reached that dramatic moment in the banquet scene when in dreadful fear he hails the ghost of Banquo to vanish:

"Hence, horrible shadow!

Unnatural mockery, hence!"

He exclaimed and, shuddering convulsively

dropped to his knees, covering his face with his robe. As the ghost vanished a shrill voice in the gallery broke the momentary silence: "It's all right now,

Emery! he's gone!"

HE ENJOYED THE BOOK.

The Prussians tell a good story of an aid-de-camp to the king, Col. Malachowski.

The man was an exceedingly brave fellow

but very poor, and the king, noting this,

hit upon the following plan for presenting him with some money without wounding his feelings. He had a book hollowed out and neatly bound in morocco. In it he deposited 500 crowns in gold and then sent it to his aid. Malachowski met the king not long after, and in response to the question, "How did you like the book?" he made the following reply: "Sir,

I enjoyed the book immensely. It was so impressively interesting that I am now

so impatient to receive the second volume."

The king was much pleased at the reply

and when the officer's birthday came around he sent him another book similar in every respect, but engraved upon the front, in neat gold lettering were the words: "This work is complete in two volumes."

HER PROTECTOR.

"Well, sir," explained young Mr. Soberbs, "it was like this: I thought my wife might be afraid of traps, so I bought her a watchdog. He was a fierce looking bull and I reckoned he'd about fill the bill. I got him in the morning and had him sent right out to the house.

When I got home that night one of the loudest looking hounds you ever saw was sitting on the porch. "What in thunder are you doing here?" I asked.

"Well, boss," says he, "I come lookin' for a handout, an' de lady she gimme 50 cents

to stick around and protect her from dat

dog o' yours. She's sure scared of 'im."

HOW ABOUT IT?

It was undoubtedly true that the stout man sat up more room in the crowd than

he was often occupied by one person.

The exceedingly thin man next whom he sat heavily down gave a sound of disapproval.

"They ought to charge by weight in these cars," he said to his neighbor on the outside, in so clear a tone that the stout man could not help hearing him.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 11, 1908

In the death of George Washington Prescott, which occurred at his home on State street, Quincy, Wednesday morning, the newspaper world loses one of its most esteemed and respected members. Few, if any, men in Massachusetts have been so long connected with newspaper work as Mr. Prescott, and none more highly esteemed and respected. In 1860 he celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his entering upon his special work, and his untiring devotion to that work has given the Quincy Patriot and the Quincy Daily Ledger a local, stable and national reputation of which he might well be proud. His services to the cause of the newspaper have been many and his efforts to improve the industry have been constant. He was a member of the Massachusetts Press Association, the Suburban Press Association and the Republican Editorial Association and in all of these organizations he will be sadly missed after their business meetings and social gatherings.

READ THIS
The people who think, or act as though they thought, that all land and soil is cultivated on it is absolutely free had better study the Revised Laws of Massachusetts 1902, Chapter 208, Section 105, as amended by acts of 1904, Chapter 441. Who ever willfully and maliciously enters an orchard, nursery, garden or cranberry meadow, and takes away mulberries or destroys a tree, shrub or vine, or steals, takes and carries away any fruit or flower without the consent of the owner thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than six months.

POLITICAL
Another week will see some active work all along the line in the political field. The much talked of barbecue of the Republicans of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties will take place at the Point of Pines on Tuesday, and the leading event of the campaign as far as New England is concerned. Already over ten thousand tickets are sold with more to be heard from. Lieut. Gov. Draper will be the presiding officer of the day and looking forward to the Republican State convention he will be the nominee of the party for Governor by acclamation.

The three-cornered contest for Lieutenant Governor is still on, but according to Practical Politics, which keeps in close touch with all the movements, Mr. Cole and Mr. Luce are "out" and the title is now settling strongly towards Mr. Frothingham.

The Senatorial contest is between Mr. Jenney of Hyde Park and Mr. Hutton of Quincy, the latter confident he will go into the convention with the entire Quinque delegation which will leave for the state more to gather up from the outside.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.
School opened Tuesday with the largest enrollment on record, of 241 pupils, divided as follows: post graduates, 2; seniors, 37; juniors, 58; sophomores, 95; freshmen 102; which is an increase of five over last year's enrollment.

Beginning the year there are three new teachers, sub-master Arthur Tobien of Trenton, Bates '04, who formerly instructed at a private school in New Jersey; Miss Mildred Smith of Weymouth, a Weymouth girl and Miss Nellie Duffy of East Weymouth, a local girl.

There have been many changes in the program, made possible by the addition of a new teacher. The work of the instructors is now as follows: Mr. Sampson, United States History and Latin; Mr. Hutton, English and Chemistry; Miss Helen Curtis is in charge of Room 2 and teaches French, Junior and Senior Latin; Miss Mary Sheely, Room 7, senior and junior English, senior and junior German; Junior History: Miss Ethel Shaw, Room 3, French; Miss Marion Westwood, Room 5, Geometry and Junior Algebra; Miss Alice Farwell, Room 1, Algebra and Junior Science; Miss Lydia Chapman, Room 4, Commercial Work; Miss Mildred Smith, Room 5, Greek History and Caesar, Freshman Commercial Work; Miss Nellie Duffy, Freshman and sophomore English, Roman History.

The addition of a new teacher has made it possible to subdivide French and Geometry, so that now the arrangement is comfortable.

Pearson's Latin Prose composition has been introduced in all Latin classes in place of Moulton's formerly used.

Of the class of 1908 fourteen are to pursue their education in higher schools and colleges.

Miss Bertha Gifford has entered the junior class from the high school at Auburn, New York.

John McGarry and Edward Conroy, W. H. S. '07 entered their second year at Boston College, Thursday.

Noon recess has been cut short five minutes in order to let the pupils catch the early car to South Weymouth.

William Lovagana, formerly of the class of 1910 has again entered school.

Henry Duffy has entered Burdett's college of Boston.

WEYMOUTH HISTORY.

An Abstract of Town Records from its Earliest Settlement.
CHAPTER XLVI.
At a special Town meeting held April 25th, 1790, called in conformity of many towns to fix the pay of representatives to the General Court, it was voted to allow the representative a day per day for the ensuing year.

It is evident that the town still held some property in the North Meeting house as they sold a few at public sale at this meeting for $150.

The May meeting was no doubt an interesting one to the people of that day. The committee appointed at a previous meeting to report in regard to the schoolhouse reported that the following places were best suited for the purpose.

Viz.—First at the School House on King Oak Hill; 2d. between Mr. Waterman and Mr. Turner's house; 3d. near Mr. Nathaniel Richards' house on the west side of the way; 4th. near Mr. John Vinton's mill lane on the Main road.

It was voted to instruct the representative to use his efforts for establishing a new school.

"Voted to raise $100 to defray the town's charges and build two school houses."

"Voted to let out Rockwood between Great Hill and Hunt's Hill to the highest bidder."

At a Town meeting held Oct. 4th Urban Bates, John Tirrell, Thomas Vinton, Josiah Waterman and James Humphrey were appointed a committee to select a site for a new schoolhouse.

March 1791.—After the usual election of town officers and re-naming annual rules and regulations in regard to town government it was "Voted that the town clerk be directed to lay before the town clerk in the next town meeting after he has received said laws."

(No man living would dare attempt the above feat in the Year of Our Lord 1908.)

The committee on Rockwood reported that they had sold the same to David Blanchard for a term of ten years for 42 1/2 cents.

Lemuel Torrey was granted permission to lay stones along the beach in front of his land for the purpose of growing Rockwood.

May 19th.—"Voted to raise $50 for schools and $50 for other town charges."

"Voted that the selectmen provide women schools the ensuing year."

March Meeting, 1792.—The collection of taxes was the vexed question of the meeting and it was voted to put the collection at vendue to be sold to the highest bidder to put up $5 as earnest money until he shall have secured satisfactory bonds, and the North Parish went to Joshua Torrey for five and a half pence per 100.

At the State election in April John Hutton received all the votes but one for Governor and Samuel Adams the entire vote for Lieut. Governor.

At this meeting it was voted to build a stone pound near the residence of John Tirrell but it is evident from future records that this pound was never built.

At the March meeting a request was received by the following petitioners of Abington asking to be taken in by Weymouth provided the General Court would grant the petition to be separated from Abington: Josiah White, Laban Paine, Ezra Tirrell, Laban Paine Jr., Abiah Shaw, Josiah Curtis, Abiah Shaw, Thomas Hunt, Jeremiah White, John White and Benjamin White.

"Voted to grant the petition."

A request was received from Scituate in the county of Plymouth for a new county of towns, south of Boston and John Tirrell was appointed a committee to take counsel with them.

(We would here state that Gilbert Nash's history, page 74, fixes the formation of Norfolk county as in the year 1793 which is evidently a typographical error, as may be learned from Book 2 of town records.)

The county was not made until 1793 and it was a sad disappointment to Weymouth and other towns in the immediate vicinity, as it was hoped to have Weymouth or Quincy the "shire town," but it went to Dedham and the others were shortly made to get back into Suffolk county by without effect, and we of this generation can only accomplish it by becoming a part of "Greater Boston."

The only thing out of the ordinary at the March meeting was "Voted to give permission to erect a hospital for innoculation of the small pox under the supervision of the selectmen."

At the May meeting it was voted to send a representative to the General Court. The Town Election in April and May business meeting were all without marked incidents.

At a special meeting held in August of that year it was voted to take action in regard to the soldiers' wages and it was voted to join the captains of militia in hiring the men that they are called upon to detach from their companies."

"Voted that the soldiers' wages be made up to $15 a month for each month in service and $1 per year for one day's service (the regiment meets one day in a year, and $10 to each soldier when he shall enlist or be detached, as a bounty.)"

Dec. 11th, 1794.—"Voted to raise the sum of $24 for the purpose of paying the soldiers' bounty as per vote of Nov. 3rd."

Shoe Industry.
Fall goods are now in the windows of shoe stores, although the sale of summer goods is not over. The change from summer to fall is accomplished without any break. No "opening" is necessary. The transition is a matter of comfort on the wearer's part. If the autumn is a slow time in the shoe business, it is not for some weeks beyond the usual time. Summer clearance sales help to put off serious business in heavier grades, but the new goods are on exhibition and the buyers are being educated to know what they should wear.

Among the manufacturers the feeling is growing that this fall will see a good trade develop and the next few weeks will see plenty of business all along the line. At present the signs of improvement are to be found in the increased sales of medium-grade goods. The medium-grade goods being in the market, their demands are increasing. They avoid the cheap shoe, which is not economic and are unable to take the high-grade lines; but in the medium grade, which in this day and generation is really the standard shoe, they find a satisfactory article.

Manufacturers are being crowded by customers to get out their orders earlier than was first required. These hints received an anxiety on the part of the wholesaler to get the first and last of the business, by meeting the initial demand they clear out stock, and restock for the stockings and duplications which may be expected.

The rush for early deliveries indicates that stocks are being reduced among the wholesalers and they do not wish to be caught. This is causing increased activity among some shops, and others are only moderately busy.

This is the period when the weather prophet is fortelling the winter, and shoe manufacturers are deciding that the demand for storm shoes will be large. In preparing for this condition there has been an extensive manufacture of goods of chrome-tanned, Russian calf stock for women's wear, on mannish lasts, and other styles on lasts of more slender shape. Buckle tops add to the appearance and seem to indicate the outdoor activity of the wearer. There will also be a fair quantity of tan shoes of heavy construction for men, for winter wear.

It is expected that the sale of low-cut shoes for women will continue into the fall, for by the use of gaiters these comfortable shoes can be fitted for outdoor service; and without the gaiters be adapted to the house.

The button-top for women this fall is being made in great numbers, and the seductive of elaborate buttons to help advance them. These buttons are made in pearl and gold, and silver, gun-metal, etc. The pumps, which have straps over the instep to help keep them on, are gorgeous with buckles of old-gold, beaten silver, and also to each shoe a pair of valuable and showy stones in tasteful settings.

It is predicted that the sale of high-grade tan shoes will be excellent next spring. That the cheaper shoe will not be in marked demand. The popularity of the tan shoe this year exceeded 1907 in marked degree, but it was a remarkable fact that in many places the sale of tan shoes was not so good as last year. The reason which held them up was the buckle and strap fastening, which was expected to make the shoes so equipped strong shoes. They were too much for conservative ideas and were ignored. That style of shoe will be limited in order to answer season.

The probable demand for white shoes is a seasonable conundrum and different makers have different opinions. It is evident that the white shoe has reached a firm basis of demand. It is an article which is almost a necessity for certain times and places, and the demand for them will be steady. The craze will not be so marked again as it was two years ago. Manufacturers of white goods are preparing to do a conservative business, and are offering white shoes in leather and canvas for the summer of 1909.

Tanners are expecting a large demand for fancy leathers for the shoes for the spring of 1909, and are now making ready. The usual styles of black patent, tan and tan will be manufactured in new styles. Especially in this case in the brown leathers, the shades running from an almost lemon-yellow to a mahogany brown. There is even a "patent" tan which is being tried for the first time in any serious way.

Naturally black leather leads all others, as people are conservative and are weaned from the orthodox color but slowly, but colors of all kinds will be represented in the footwear for women and children, and combinations of colors as well, till the 1909 shoes will be as gorgeous as the 1908 shoes.—Boston Transcript

ALL SOULS' CHURCH.

Rev. Frederick R. Griffin Opens a New Season at All Souls' Church, Braintree.
On September the thirteenth, the regular services of the church and Sunday School will be resumed, and the various affiliated organizations will meet on their regular days.

The Sunday morning service, the hour of which is ten-thirty, has been developed to meet the needs of those who appreciate dignity, sincerity, and reverence in the worship of religion. The music is of much superior to what it has been at any past time, and is now of the greatest aid to the purposes of the church.

At the same hour, ten-thirty, in the parish parlour, the kindergarten meets. This department has always been appreciated by those who have shared its benefits. Meeting at the church hour, it enables parents to attend the morning service while their small children are in a bright and comfortable room, receiving the instructions of a capable, salaried teacher. This is really an unusual opportunity.

The Sunday School, with fourteen classes, meets at eleven-fifty-five. Sunday schools have often suffered through inefficient teachers. It is a fact always to be remembered that our Sunday School has been able to command the services of the most able and talented men and women in the parish.

The adult class meets at eleven-fifty in the minister's room. This class has forty-five minutes of friendly and informal discussions, and this year the study of Emerson will be continued.

We believe that All Souls' church is well equipped to carry on the best endeavors of a religious society. We believe that it has already exercised a marked influence upon the community. We believe that it offers large attractions, and therefore we wish your cheerful, enthusiastic, and loyal support. Invite strangers to join with us, invite the habitual stay-at-home to enter heartily into our life.

This is going to be a great year, and it all starts on Sunday, September the thirteenth.

THE PEOPLE WERE THERE.

Brilliant Driving Matinee at the Fair Grounds.

The thousands of people who visited the fair grounds at South Weymouth Monday had an afternoon of rare enjoyment. The event was a combination matinee of the Old Colony, Brockton and Dedham teams.

In coming the summer season is slow in existence, there has never been a time when so many good horses were to be seen and so much life and activity on the track.

The races were well arranged and followed each other in rapid order so there was an actual freedom from the usual long waits between races and annoying long time wasted in scoring. Most of the races were by well matched horses and a consequent good interest in the race.

The grand stand was packed with lovers of the sport and there was among the crowd a large number of ladies who watched the contests as closely as the men who were supposed to know more about horses.

The Old Colony club will continue the series of meetings tomorrow, Saturday, when the athletic meet and several good classes are scheduled.

Brockton Fair.

The Big Brockton Fair dates this year are Sept. 29, Oct. 1, 2. It's the same big carnival of amusement this year as in the past with many new features of interest.

The lovers of harness racing will have a treat as there are besides the usual classes, to be match races between Sweet Marie, Major Delmar and George G. for purses aggregating $5,750 with an addition of $1,500 if the world's half-mile track record is lowered.

This will give the horse and rider a chance to set the record, many of whom have never before had an opportunity. The Stage Show is the biggest ever offered and includes 18 star acts and over 100 artists.

The Horse Show will be as usual a pleasing feature and running races will be an interesting event. The Athletic Meet and the Marathon Race are exciting much interest and with the many other attractions, will as in past years make the Brockton Fair the show that dwarfs all others.

A Dispenser of Smiles.
Her mother said: "Oh dear! Isn't that awful? What will people think if they see that poor thing out there?"

She was a very little girl, white frocked, pink ribboned, brown curls, and she was standing on the sidewalk, looking up at the Grand Central station. The usual confusion prevailed. Timid travelers grabbed suit cases and bundles and rushed to get out of the way.

"Goodby, everybody," she said. The words carried to the far end of the car. They made every one sit up. Two or three men looked out of their seats and stared at the little girl. "Goodby, everybody," she said. "Goodby, everybody," she said. "Goodby, everybody," she said.

The Sea Serpent.
When fourteen miles off the coast of Brazil, M. J. Nicol, author of "Three Voyages of a Naturalist," observed a large, yellowish, cone-shaped object, fifty yards of the ship. "All that we could see was a dorsal fin about four feet long sticking up about two feet from the water. The fin was a brownish, having a head shaped like that of a turtle, appeared in front of the fin, rushing up the water with a curious wriggling movement. This creature was an example, I consider, of what has been so often reported for want of a better name, as the 'great sea serpent.' I feel sure, however, that it was not a reptile that we saw, but a manatee."

Art Comes High.

"A New York lady," said a Dartmouth, "once ventured to remonstrate with Pugin because he had charged her $700 for a ball dress."

"The material," she said, "could be bought for $100, and surely the work would be well paid with $50 more."

"Madame," said Pugin, with his grand air, "so to your American painter, Sargent, in his little Tithe street studio and say to him: 'Here is a yard of canvas, value 50 cents, and here are colors, value $1. Paint me a picture with these colors on this canvas, and I will pay you $175.' What will the painter say? He will say, 'Madame, those are no terms for an artist.' Pay more, my lady, you think my terms too high, pay me nothing and keep the robe. Art does not descend to the littleness of haggling."

The Best Way to Starve.

If one feels bound to undertake starvation for a period, it is best, a trained physician tells us, to make the process not quite complete by eating a little at the usual intervals of fasting absolutely for a comparatively long time. This makes fresh treatment quite useless. Physicians said that as the body is starved fat and sugar disappear first, and then the minor organs are drawn upon to support the brain and heart, continuing until no more material can be spared. Exhaustion is then very near.

Did as He Was Told.

A well known Brooklyn clergyman in a talk to his Sunday school urged the children to speak to him whenever they met. The next day a dirty faced youth accosted him in the street with "How do, doc?"

The clergyman stopped and cordially inquired, "And who are you, sir?"

"I'm one of your little lams," replied the youth, "Piney day."

And, tilting his hat to the back of his head, he swaggered off, leaving the worthy divine speechless with amazement.

Gazelles Hunting.

Gazelles in Nubia are hunted by a powerful breed of hounds in build somewhat heavier than a greyhound. In spite of being far swifter than the hound the gazelle falls a victim from the nervous habit of constantly stopping to look back to see if it is pursued. It also expends its strength by taking great bounds in an almost vertical direction, thereby not only losing time, but exhausting itself, so that it is overtaken without difficulty.

WEYMOUTH HISTORY.

An Abstract of Town Records from its Earliest Settlement.
CHAPTER XLVII.
At the March meeting in 1795, John Tirell was elected Town Clerk, Urban Selectmen, and Joshua Humphrey, Treasurer. The other list of town officers and committees came in regular order and then the topic of the day was Fore River, Back River and the wharves and landing places and the discussion terminated in the following vote and result.
"Voted to let out the landing places
and wharves for one year from the 5th day of April next to the highest bidder.
The venue was held and Capt. Joshua Bates bid Back River for six dollars and fifty cents and paid two dollars to blend the bargains. Ezra Bicknell bid Fore River for thirty two dollars and fifty cents and paid eleven dollars earnest money."
At the May meeting Asa White was elected Representative.
There was some school business done
but most of the day was devoted to roads.
A committee appointed for that purpose
made an elaborate report on the laying out of a new road or highway to Adams creek so called. This highway crossed the land of several people but it is evident that the town has an abatement law in three days and it would be a good idea to revive but perhaps in a more definite form at that time instead of being allowed to "bust the town" for a few feet of land
the people across whose land the road
was built, and who would be benefited thereby were to pay for the improvement.
March 1796 with the exception of a few minor officers the same parties were elected as in 1795.
The fishery was the main topic of this meeting and it was "voted to sell them by the barrel for the highest bidder at the rate of 70¢ per barrel and fish to be taken between sunrise and sunset on but three days in the week.
"Voted that the highways be repaired
by a tax of 4¢ on a poll and in proportion to real estate, 1/2¢ per acre, the privilege of substituting a day's work for the 4¢.
"Voted to raise $200 per schooling."
The rivers were again sold by vendue
and Capt. Joshua Bates bought Back River for the year for $6; Lieut. John White, Fore River for $11.
At the state election in April the town cast 69 votes for Governor all but one which were for Samuel Adams.
Washington was born in the last year of his second term as president and had publicly declared himself as opposed to a third term and would not accept another election. The campaign was on for a President of the United States for the next four years but it is apparent that Washington took but little interest in the matter as it cast but 17 votes at the November election of members of Congress and the presidential electors, Rev. John Reed received 13 votes for member of Congress and Edward H. Robinson 4.
In 1799 and in 1800 the legislature passed
an act authorizing the taking of the water
by the town but at the next town meeting it was voted not to accept. The matter came up again at the next annual meeting and was again defeated and the Act
of the Legislature was lost by limitation
of time but was extended by a new act,
that act, the result of another petition.
In the mean time the people of East Weymouth started in a new direction, had
nearly completed arrangements to connect with the Hingham system and supply East Weymouth from Accord Pond.
There were however those in Weymouth
who were not "regulators" and for special town meeting was called for Sept. 18th
which resulted in a vote of 256 in favor and 114 opposed and following is what the Gazette said of it in its next issue:
"Tuesday evening last the town of Weymouth by vote of its citizens, passed long strides towards its advancement in the path of progress and enterprise, in accepting the Act of the State Legislature enabling the town to procure a supply of pure water from Great Pond (or what is now more correctly termed, Westwood Lake) in South Weymouth, by maintaining public waterworks. The necessity of this action has been apparent to leading citizens of the town for years past, but former efforts to secure a supply of pure water by public action have been defeated by popular vote. The promoters of the enterprise were not disheartened
by this rejection of measures presented to the town, but they have been encouraged by the success of the Hingham improvement, and especially to the sagacity and energy of Augustus J. Richards, Esq., of this town, who we may venture to say is one of the fathers of the Weymouth water enterprise, is our community indebted for this great benefit, though we also honor to other gentlemen who have also taken a deep interest in the subject."

Put out the flag today for the 25th anniversary of the vote which gave Weymouth a water system, and by the way, why doesn't the town have a flag at its headquarters? We are told that the Town of Weymouth does not own a flag separate from those connected with the schools
and fire department.
Two things not to be forgotten next week: First, the Republican voters ought not to forget the caucus in the Town hall Tuesday night. Second, the public ought not to forget the report of the Agricultural and Industrial association scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It is a Weymouth institution and its failure or success means so much for or against the town.

The waited and watched for result of the work of the assessors has come at last and the result is now up to the people. Weymouth is to be congratulated on that result: the rate is $21.50, a reduction of $1.40 from last year. In all of the work done it has been done by the entire board, either in the assessment of real and personal property or in the adjustment of grievances. This of course, with many new features the assessors
have met with, has caused some delay,
but the result is accepted with pleasure.

We are often asked, "What have the selectmen done with the petition of the Street Railroad registry carrying 'express matter'?" There has been some delay on account of the illness and absence of A. P. Worthen, Esq., the able town council. Immediately on his return, Mr.
Worthen devoted his time to the work
and has drawn up the necessary papers.
The selectmen have voted to grant the franchise but of course there is still to be an acceptance of the conditions by all parties concerned.

As the calendar days of the year go, this 18th day of Sept. 1908, is the 25th anniversary of the Town Meeting at which Weymouth voted to supply itself with water from Great Pond. The movement began
in 1879 and in 1880 the legislature passed
an act authorizing the taking of the water
by the town but at the next town meeting it was voted not to accept. The matter came up again at the next annual meeting and was again defeated and the Act
of the Legislature was lost by limitation
of time but was extended by a new act,
that act, the result of another petition.
In the mean time the people of East Wey-
mouth started in a new direction, had
nearly completed arrangements to connect with the Hingham system and supply East Weymouth from Accord Pond.
There were however those in Weymouth
who were not "regulators" and for special

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Smith celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage
at their home on Sterling street, Sunday
from 3 to 10 p. m.
Cornelius Smith and Miss Mary Smith were married at the Catholic church in Hampden, Sept. 15, 1858 by Rev. F.
Roche at that time in charge of the Catholic parishes in this section. Mr. Smith is 75 years old and was born in Kantuck County, Cork, Ireland and one of the seven children of Richard and Margaret Buckley Smith. He came to this country when 17 years old, living in Abington
some years and then coming to this town
where he has since resided.
Mrs. Smith was born in western New York, Jan. 8, 1839 and one of a family of 14 children. She moved to Quincy when five years old but since her marriage had resided in this town.
Twelve children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, seven of whom are living as follows: George W. Smith of Weymouth, Richard F. Smith of New York, Thomas
J. Smith of East Weymouth, Catherine, wife of Robert N. Woods of Weymouth, Theresa, wife of Joseph Kelly of Weymouth,
Elizabeth L., wife of Dr. John Kelley of Bridgewater and Albert J. Smith of Rockland. There are 22 grandchildren nearly all of whom greeted the old couple Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Smith received many remembrances including gold and silver coins.

South Shore Commandery, K. T.
It being the annual convocation of the South Shore Commandery Knights Templar,
the gathering at Masonic building Monday night was an unusually large one and the old year closed with a good report from the recorder, trustees and treasurer.
Officers elected for another year were:
Albert W. Fay of Wollaston, E. C.; Arthur W. Burr of Hingham, G. F.; Parker
A. Bicknell, C. G.; Gardner B. Barker,
Fratel; Leavitt W. Bates, Asst. Fratel;
Henry P. Fernald, S. W.; Frank W. Bates,
J. W.; Edmund G. Bates, T. C.; E. H. J.
Cain, Rec.; John H. Gray, W. Arthur M.
Raymond, organist; Percy B. Cook, E. G.;
and T. J. Evans, Francis A. Bicknell and William S. Wallace, trustees of permanent funds.

County Commissioner.
Hon. John F. Merrill of Quincy, chairman and senior member of the Board of County Commissioners of Norfolk County, and who this year completes his first term in that office, is a candidate for re-election. Under Mr. Merrill's administration the county debt and tax rate have been materially reduced.
Custom of the past and the good of the present suggest that Mr. Merrill be continued in the position.

Makes Another Success.
Saturday afternoon saw the matinees of the Old Colony Club still further popularized by a goodly number of people being present, some good classes raced in which twenty three horses were driven to win
blue ribbons.
Class A Trotting and pacing proved to be the feature of the afternoon as in it the track record was lowered by Charles who went the half mile in 1:71 and also Altro L. who covered the same circuit in

In two years the Spanish-American war
came on and Mr. Frothingham was satisfied with nothing less than active participation in that affair. He was made lieutenant U. S. M. C., having command
of the marine guard on the U. S. steamer
"Yankee" in Cuban waters, and his record

It was not long before the attraction of
politics began to appeal to the young
lawyer, and at the age of thirty he was elected to the Massachusetts legislature.
There, as elsewhere, his native ability
and energy soon made him a marked figure. He began to be considered a man of importance. He got good committee appointments. In 1902, his second year, he was made chairman of the committee on taxation as well as a member of the committee on banks and banking.
In 1903 he served as chairman of the street railways committee, and at that time was so prominent that he was considered for the speakership of the House and in fact he was elected to that high office, being elected unanimously in 1905. No speaker was more popular or highly respected. Mr. Frothingham displayed an immense amount of energy in the chair and under his administration business was expedited as it had not been for decades before. In his second term he was elected to the chairmanship of the committee on taxation as well as a member of the committee on banks and banking.

SKETCH OF HON. LOUIS A. FROTHINGHAM.

Louis A. Frothingham was born in Jamaica Plain, July 13, 1871, of old New England stock long noted for its sturdy honesty and good citizenship. As a boy he received his education in the public schools of Boston, supplementing this by fitting for college at the Adams academy in Quincy. He entered Harvard in 1889 and almost immediately became a popular figure in the university. He was a scholar in all the best sense of the word, but he was more than that, he took part in all the social activities in the college and he soon won a prominent place in athletics.
He made the varsity ball nine early in his career and became one of the best captains and base ball players ever turned out at Cambridge. He played football, also,
and was prominent in other branches of athletics. He is still remembered by tradition at Harvard as a first class all around athlete and a good fellow.
Mr. Frothingham studied law at the Harvard Law school, graduating from that institution in 1896. He immediately began the practice of his profession and it was not long before his ability and force were felt at the bar.
In two years the Spanish-American war
came on and Mr. Frothingham was satisfied with nothing less than active participation in that affair. He was made
lieutenant U. S. M. C., having command
of the marine guard on the U. S. steamer
"Yankee" in Cuban waters, and his record
in that position was quite typical of the man, for he was a good officer and at the same time a popular comrade.
It was not long before the attraction of
politics began to appeal to the young
lawyer, and at the age of thirty he was elected to the Massachusetts legislature.
There, as elsewhere, his native ability

The Confidential Clerk.

By HOWARD FIELDING.

Copyright, 1908, by C. W. Hooker.

GEOFFREY BLAKE was a sort of confidential secretary for old Lemuel Pettus, the money lender. Everybody knew a bit about him, but he was a certain sort of publicity. Three or four times a year he permits himself to be interviewed at some length and held up to the young as an example of thrift, integrity and other virtues. He has a favorite interview for early summer when he is interviewed at the most of the happiest achievements of unbecoming humor, for it is based upon the serious conviction that the most worthy object of human ambition is to become a narrow, selfish, skunk-like Lemuel Pettus.

Blake was nearly forty and had been in the employ of Pettus for fifteen years.

In the course of his connection with Pettus, Blake had become like an old man. His life was a dull, steady, uneventful one, and he was a handsome fellow, with an excellent figure and carriage, but now he was thin and shuffling in gait, and his clothes were almost as shabby as Pettus's.

He was a man of the advantages of the no vacation habit.

Pettus never took any chances. He always had two dollars worth of unimpeachable collateral for every dollar that he put out. The reader who is familiar with such phrases of life will not be surprised to learn that Blake, who existed in the atmosphere of "sure things," was himself a reckless investor. He could save and sometimes make a little money, but he could not keep it. At the time of the events which form the subject of this tale Blake had $2,000 tied up in a gold mine which was nothing but a hole in the ground, scarcely deep enough to hide the man who dug it.

This man had been a schoolfellow of Blake's and had drifted about the mining regions of the west since then. He had narrowly missed several great fortunes, according to his own story, but the occasion of his father's death he came east and secured a very small inheritance, which he converted into cash. He did the same for the share of the estate which fell to his half sister, who was more than twenty years younger than himself. With these two lumps of money and Blake's $2,000 he went west again to develop his mine.

The half sister, Amy Lessing, remained with a distant relative in New Hampshire, but when this relative died, she came back to her own story, and money to her brother's painful inheritance. Amy, in despair at this situation, wrote to Jack Lessing and addressed the letter to him at the mine. This man had given all her money to her brother's painful inheritance. Amy, in despair at this situation, wrote to Jack Lessing and addressed the letter to him at the mine.

It was a fact that Pettus was often unable to read his own writing and that Blake was the only man on earth who could be depended upon to perform that feat. The Pettus had been famous.

"I'll consider the matter," said Blake, and at the moment it was his intention to see Hoffnagel next day, but he had taken his sister's money and had not mentioned it to his partner. It looked as if the poor girl might be in rather hard circumstances, and Blake had come into a mine of which he owned one-half. With an awesome sense of assuming a burden that he might be entirely beyond his powers to write his letter to her to come to New York.

Jack Lessing had been a good fellow from his youth, and Blake had been of him, but Jack was not a man to be trifled with. He looked like an unkind caricature of Napoleon Bonaparte, and Blake unconsciously assumed that his sister's nearest counterpart of him had been exalted in the ranks of femininity. Perhaps because he knew that there was none like Mrs. Pettus the money lender, and because he had been so long with her, he had a feeling of familiarity with her. He had come into a mine of which he owned one-half. With an awesome sense of assuming a burden that he might be entirely beyond his powers to write his letter to her to come to New York.

One day, however, Blake appeared in the office clad in new raincoat, and he was the one living reality and central influence of all creation. Pettus did not know this, and he proceeded to deliver a lecture against designing work. This is not the subject of the story, but it was a lecture against designing work. This is not the subject of the story, but it was a lecture against designing work.

Blake endured a considerable length of the discourse from a mere bubble of humility, the product of a gradual loss of self respect in Pettus's company, but at last the old man's overstepped the bounds, and Blake's temper exploded for the first time in many years. He resigned Pettus to the subcellar of the bottomless pit and walked out of the office.

Two days later Blake and Miss Lessing were married. They had less than a hundred dollars in money and no employment. Their language, however, was worth starving for, if such should be their fate. An intoxicating sense of freedom thrilled them with unimagined joys.

Blake had written to his lawyer, Dear Hoffnagel—I'm off to Denver. Am writing this in a cab on the way to the station. See George Blake, formerly in my employ, and buy his interest and his wife's in the California mine. I'll have it all for $2,000. I'll have it all for $2,000. I'll have it all for $2,000.

Blake returned home that afternoon really disheartened, seriously alarmed. He had detected the Pettus had been strong against him, and his heart was full of bitterness.

To his unexpected amazement, he found Mrs. Pettus in his sitting room. She was a pale old woman in her cheap black gown was doing her miserable best to be affable and to give an air of the usual to this extraordinary incident.

"My husband was very sorry to lose you, Mr. Blake," said she. "He would be glad indeed if you would return to his employment, and I'm sure that all your differences could be adjusted to his satisfaction. You are a very satisfactory man. At any rate, you and I have no quarrel, and I'm sure you will do me little ill favor."

Any one who has had a face hardened by the force of habit and who has been so long with her, he had a feeling of familiarity with her. He had come into a mine of which he owned one-half. With an awesome sense of assuming a burden that he might be entirely beyond his powers to write his letter to her to come to New York.

"This will take me all night," said he, "but you shall have it tomorrow morning if the thing can be done."

"I will send it to Mr. Hoffnagel's office," said Mrs. Pettus, and she was firmly set aside by Blake.

"I will take no money for this," he said. "I regret to say that my feelings for Mr. Pettus are not sufficiently cordial for either friendly or business relations."

"You wrong him; indeed you do," said Mrs. Pettus. "He is really very fond of you."

Immediately after dinner Blake sat down to his task, and for two hours he worked without appreciable result. Any because so tired watching him that she fell asleep in her chair, and finally Blake picked her up as if she had been a child and carried her to her room.

At 4 o'clock in the morning Blake awoke to find the room. He was trembling from head to foot with exhaustion and excitement. His face was pale, and his eyes were sunken, but very bright.

Any was asleep precisely where he had put her. Apparently she had not moved hand or foot. She was very beautiful in her healthy youth and stately purity of heart.

As Blake turned up the light she stirred and spoke:

"If we can manage the rest we'll be all right. Why, George, I was asleep."

"You were indeed," said he, "and I had dream you were having. Rent, eh? Well, well, my dear, just cast your eye on this and then talk to me of beauty!"

"MR. HOFFNAGEL WANTS TO SEE YOU."

cutus of Pettus. They had escaped into life and love, and the sun and moon sang to them from the heavens. Blake did not anticipate any difficulty in finding work. He was known to many prominent men in the Wall Street region. He had an intimate acquaintance with securities and credits. Surely he could get a better position than the one which he had left. And, indeed, this proved more easy than his rosiest dreams had pictured it, but an unexpected obstacle barred his way. Men were willing to employ him, but they even sought to make offers—but he discovered that every one of them was looking for the secrets of Lemuel Pettus. The instant that Blake revealed a sense of honor in this matter all negotiations were at an end.

He had never before realized the nature of his position with Pettus, although he had occasionally been "approached" by the emissaries of money. He never perceived that he should spend one week in the tedious distribution of information to the rest of his day upon the proceeds. On the other hand, his possession of this information was so well known that no one would employ him except upon an understanding that he would do "the right thing."

Moreover, this situation had been foreseen by Pettus, and he had extended the long arm of his influence to the money market against Blake. Disclosure of this fact, Blake raged the more against his former employer.

The state of the family exchequer had become desperate when the revelation of a note from a lawyer named Hoffnagel, who was Pettus's chief adviser. It was delivered to Blake in the tiny apartment which was now so "of sure things" was himself a reckless investor. He could save and sometimes make a little money, but he could not keep it. At the time of the events which form the subject of this tale Blake had $2,000 tied up in a gold mine which was nothing but a hole in the ground, scarcely deep enough to hide the man who dug it.

Can't Miss It

So many ailments are purely nervous affections, that you can hardly miss it if you try Dr. Miles' Nerve.

Nerve. It restores nervous energy—and through its invigorating influence upon the nervous system, the organs are strengthened. The heart action is better; digestion improved, the sluggish condition overcome, and healthy activity re-established.

"Dr. Miles' Nerve" is worth its weight in gold to me. I did not know what a good physician meant until I tried it. I was nearly crazy. One day I picked up a paper and the first thing that met my eye was an advertisement of Dr. Miles' Nerve. I concluded to try it and let my doctor go, and I did so. After taking two bottles of Dr. Miles' Nerve, I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and I have found it to be a most valuable remedy. I have been cured of my nervous condition, and I am now in perfect health. I have been cured of my nervous condition, and I am now in perfect health. ON THE FARM.

Spend today and tomorrow at the Fair grounds. Study the various products, find out who has got a better product than you and then find out how he did it.

Choose for a friend the best farmer in your section.

With farm tools, winter neglect makes spring rust.

Shiftless hens, housed in cold, draughty ramshackle houses, and allowed to wade in the slush and snow, never pay the owner a profit, nor even pay for their feed.

Farmers should use great care not to allow their hogs or cattle to have access to potato tops or other vines upon which paris green has been sprinkled. An observance of this advice may prevent the loss of valuable stock, as some have learned from experience.

Orchards that are in grass continually are sometimes injured. The best method is to plow under the grass, lime the land, give an application of well-rotted manure, and reseed. Some orchards do best when in grass, if the soil is rich, but the peach and plum are exceptions. The grass should, however, be plowed under occasionally.

A man who has tried the experiment claims that it is very easy to prevent potatoes from rotting by placing in different parts of the cellar in which they are kept a box containing a quantity of lump slack lime. He states that this lime absorbs the moisture which has such a detrimental effect upon potatoes, and in his case has resulted in keeping his stock of this commodity longer in good condition. The plan is simple enough and is well worth a trial by any grower who has had difficulty in keeping his potatoes in a damp cellar. -Weekly Witness.

While there are slight individual differences in digestive efficiency among cows, extensive experiments have shown that these are insufficient to account for the widely variable returns made by similar cows from like quantities of the same kind of food. The results obtained in tests of this kind are emphatic. It has been shown that, of two cows of apparently the same merit, from superficial examination, one may return three times as much as the other from a given amount of similar food. They digested their food equally well. It is a well-known fact that there are individual likes and dislikes among cows, which necessitates an intimate knowledge of each cow if best results are to follow.

In every state of the union there are many tracts of unoccupied land, and, which, owing to their hilly character, poor soil, or numerous boulders, are not suitable for farming. The owners of such tracts are often at a loss to know what to do with them. Without question, the best use to which land of this kind can be put is to plant it with trees. One of the fundamental principles of forest economics is, that soil which is not good enough to make the growing of cereal crops profitable should be devoted to the production of wood crops. This does not mean that trees grow better on poor soil than on fertile soil. They will, of course, grow better on fertile soil. But, in proportion to the money invested, better returns are secured from trees planted on the less valuable land.

At the fall planting of trees or shrubs have an abundance of water at hand, not that as soon as the plants are put into the hole a little soil can be thrown in around the roots, then large quantities of water should be poured in. The soil is being thrown in. Too much water cannot be used, providing of course that the soil is well drained. Fill the hole up level full, and then leave it until the surplus water is drained away and the soil settles, which will be in a couple of days or possibly, if the soil is very sandy, it will be only a few hours. Then fill up the vacant space with more soil and pack it down. It is much better to work the soil in around the roots by means of water than it is to endeavor to get it there by tamping with a stick, as the water will carry the earth into crevices which in the case of tamping would never do. -Suburban Life.

Proof is inimitable that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 804 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:
"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ailments, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Get the boys and girls to put a bit of money in the savings bank now and then. It will help them if you do that yourself once in a while. Make it a point to save something every year.

Little Tommy Whacken was taken by his mother to choose a pair of knickerbockers. His choice fell on a pair which bore a card stating, "These can't be beaten." -The Sacred Heart Review.

"Should a man go to college after fifty?" "Well, he might pass muster at tennis," answered the expert. "But a man can't expect to do much in baseball or football at that age."

"I've never had any great luck," declared the pessimist.

"Neither have I," admitted the optimist.

"Made my money by hard work and advertising."

JOY NOT MIXED.

"Your husband will be all right now," said an English doctor to a woman whose husband was dangerously ill.

"What do you mean?" demanded the wife. "You told me he couldn't live a fortnight."

"Well, I'm going to cure him, after all," said the doctor. "Steadily you are glad."

"Quite me in a bit of an eye," she said. "I've bin an' sold all 'is clothes to pay for 'is funeral."

DESERVED A PARDON.

Gov. "Dick" Oglesby once visited the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet to hear complaints of prisoners and inspect the premises. The governor stopped before a cell containing an unusually ugly man.

"My man," said the governor, pleasantly as he scrutinized the grotesque of the emotional Irish barterer, who in the frenzy of his peroration whirled upon the judge with the thrilling appeal, "Sir, was you ever a mother? To appeal to a child's better nature, little more than make a hypocrite out of him before his time."

"He has got your hair, and his mother's eyes and voice, and same of your little tricks of manner-and temper-now, and he is just as safe to develop your superb self-control and civic devotion and consideration for others if you will only give him time-and set him in a good example. Meanwhile preaching to him that he should possess these qualities will expedite matters precious little, and unless backed up by example, not at all. Remember that life and growth of all sorts are but a response to environment, and new responses can only occur as opportunity is afforded for them."

WOMAN'S WIT UNCERTAIN.

As When This Wife Failed to Appreciate Hubby's Pleasantry.

"I don't always rely upon the ready wit of a woman," said the man who is sometimes pleased to consider himself an oracle. "That ready wit business is sometimes prone to get away off."

"For example, my wife and children had been staying in the country for several weeks, and I was regular with my letters, as every loving husband should be. Finally on the day before my wife was to start for home I concluded my letter to her with these words:

"This will be the last letter I will write to you for a long, long time."

"When I got down to my office the next morning I found a telegram from my wife waiting for me. 'What on earth do you mean?' read the dispatch. 'Later a registered letter came from her. She had blotted almost every line with tears. What it was all about I could not imagine.

"Then my telephone bell rang, and when I answered I heard my wife's voice speaking over the long distance phone.

"Oh, John! said she. 'Is that really you? I thought you had committed suicide!'" -Washington Post.

Mr. Joseph Saunders was mayor of a certain town in England. He was also a married man with a wife and three children. He was also fifty years old and a man of dignity. He was also president of three or four boards, had a character for probity and was looking longingly forward to the time when he should make his appearance in the house of commons.
